INSTRUCTIONS FOR PLANTING PEONIES

Peonies should be planted in good, average garden soil. For permanent planting, prepare the ground by lifting out the top soil—the depth of a spade—and mixing into the lower soil plenty of well rotted manure, being careful not to allow this to touch the peony roots. Replace top soil and plant peonies three to four feet apart, covering the eyes with about two inches of fine dirt, not more. Deeper planting will keep them from blooming and make weak, slow growing plants.

If manure is not available, loosen dirt as described above and place about a handful of bone-meal or wood ashes around each plant. After the ground freezes cover with two or three inches of leaves, straw, or other litter to protect against spring freezing and thawing. Remove about April first. This is necessary only the first year.

Occasional cultivating from May to September will produce extra growth in the roots and give profuse bloom the following season.

Peonies should have plenty of sunshine and should not be too near old trees or shrubbery.

Never plant a peony where one has been planted before unless all the soil has been removed and replaced with soil that has never grown peonies, otherwise the plants will remain small and fail to bloom.

Before the blooming season, if the soil is dry, several liberal waterings at the base of the stems will increase the size of the blooms. For large show blooms cut off the small side buds as soon as large enough to see, this throws all the strength to the one flower and greatly increases its size.

For you who are planting peonies for the first time and do not know the wonderful beauty of the Modern Peony—many, many are the thrills that are in store for you. The peony is without doubt the grandest of all perennials, with all the delicacy of the rose, only multiplied by a size that overwhelms. That is why people by the thousands come hundreds of miles to see the various Peony Farms and Gardens. No flower you can mention draws the thousands of visitors to a planting as do Peonies, and there is a reason.

Place a trial order this year and see for yourself the beauty of the Modern Peony.

IRIS PLANTING INSTRUCTIONS

Plant in good average garden soil to which may be added a little bone meal and some crushed limestone as Irises like lime. They do best when planted where they will receive plenty of sunshine, but they will also flower in partial shade though not as freely.

See that the place you expect to plant them is well drained so they will not be where they will stand in water, but where all water will run off quickly. Some Iris lovers make their beds six inches higher than the garden path.

Irises should be spaced 12 to 15 inches apart. They should be divided and replanted about every four years.

Place the roots two or three inches under the ground with about an inch of soil over the rhizome where the roots start.

The size of rhizomes vary greatly with the different varieties—some being large and fleshy while others are quite small. All are smaller in July and August than later—but we recommend planting in these months for best results. However, it is better to plant late than to wait another year.

Irises will come to you packed dry and should be planted as soon as received. Keep the plants free from weeds by frequent but shallow cultivating and far enough away from the plants so that their strength will not be taken by older or larger plants.

Beardless Irises will come to you with their roots kept moist. Do not let them dry out before planting as they are moisture loving plants, while the Bearded Irises are not.

Plant for massed effect to get the greatest beauty, where you can view in the early morning as the sun is coming up and the late afternoon as the sun is setting. You can then see them in all their artistic coloring from rich dark hues of purples and blues through smoky cloud-like shades of buff and grey to the delicate orchid tints and rainbow effects.

Of all the garden flowers of today the Iris has developed most rapidly and is now considered the most popular perennial in the United States.
